GENERAL CONDITIONS OF THE CONTRACT FOR NON-TECHNICAL SERVICES

The City of Newton, herein referred to as the City, does hereby establish the following General Conditions, applicable to this Invitation for Bids and any subsequent purchase order, work order, shipping order or contract resulting therefrom.

1.0 SCOPE OF SERVICES

- 1.1 The Contractor agrees to furnish all labor, materials, equipment and insurance necessary to perform and fully complete, in every respect, within the time frame herein specified, all work (hereinafter referred as the Services) described in the Project Manual.
- 1.2 The Contractor shall not make any changes in the scope of Services without the prior written consent of the City. The Contractor shall make reasonable revisions or corrections, within the scope of Services, to any work performed until submitted in a form acceptable to the City.
- 1.3 The City reserves the right to alter, add to or reduce the Services by delivering to the Contractor written notice specifying the nature and extent of such alteration, addition or reduction. Such notice shall be effective upon the later of actual receipt by the Contractor or upon the date given in such notice. No addition to the Services shall be made unless the City and the Contractor have agreed to such increase in writing. In no event shall any increase in services cause the total of payments under this contract to increase by an amount exceeding twenty five percent (25%) of the contract total.

2.0 CONTRACT TERM

- 2.1 The obligations of the Contractor identified herein shall commence upon execution of the City-Contractor Contract and shall continue in full force and effect for the duration of the contract term as identified in the Project Manual. The contractor shall commence the performance of services under this contract promptly upon receipt of the City's Notice to Proceed in accordance with the provisions identified in the Project Manual.
- 2.2 In the event the term of this contract exceeds a period of one year and notwithstanding any provision to the contrary herein, the City shall cancel this contract in the event that funds are not appropriated or otherwise made available to support continuation of performance by the Contractor in any fiscal year succeeding the first year.

3.0 EXECUTION

- 3.1 All work required hereunder shall be performed as promptly as possible, and in any event within the time herein set forth, and such work shall be subject to approval and acceptance by the City, but such approval and acceptance shall not relieve the Contractor from the obligation to correct any incomplete, inaccurate or defective work, all of which shall be promptly remedied by the Contractor on demand, without cost to the City. The Contractor shall obtain all the required licenses and permits for the work herein described.
- 3.2 The Contractor shall conform to all determinations and directions of the City concerning the Contractor's delivery of services in the event of inclement weather, equipment failure, picket lines on City property, or labor strikes by the contractor's employees.

4.0 COMPENSATION

- 4.1 The City shall pay the Contractor for services rendered under this contract in accordance with the amount(s) set forth in the Contractor's General Bid Form and pursuant to the provisions contained in the Project Manual.
- 4.2 Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in the Contract, the City may withhold any payment to the Contractor hereunder if and for so long as the Contractor fails to perform any of its obligations hereunder or otherwise is in default under this Contract including, without limitation, any failure to perform Services in full accordance with the amount sufficient in the reasonable opinion of the City to cure any such default or failure of performance by the Contractor.

- 4.3 In no event shall the City be required to pay any amounts for work deemed by it to be unacceptable, or which are otherwise disputed. In the event the City disputes any such amounts invoiced, it shall pay all amounts not in dispute and notify the Contractor in writing of the amounts disputed and the reasons therefor.
- 4.4 No payment made shall constitute or be construed as final acceptance or approval of that part of the Services to which payment relates, or relieve the Contractor of any of its obligations outlined in this Contract. Further, the City shall not be deemed, by virtue of making payments to the Contractor hereunder, to have released the Contractor from any claim or liability, or to have waived any action arising out of the breach of this Contract by the Contractor.

5.0 REPORTS AND DRAWINGS

When the Contractor has been paid for the Services performed by him or her, all reports, drawings, and other material furnished to the City shall become the City's property and may be used by the City (or such parties as the City may designate) thereafter in such manner and for such purposes as the City (or such parties as the City may designate) may deem advisable, without further employment of or additional compensation to the Contractor. The Contractor shall not release or disclose any report, drawing, or other material furnished to the Contractor by the City in connection with the performance of the Contractor's Services.

6.0 CONTRACTOR'S ACCOUNTING RECORDS

The Contractor shall keep records pertaining to Services performed (including complete and detailed time records) on the basis of recognized bookkeeping practices, generally accepted accounting principles, and in accordance with such reasonable requirements to facilitate audit as the City may provide. All records shall be available to the City or its authorized representatives for review and audit during normal business hours.

Any such termination, suspension, or postponement shall not give rise to any cause of action for damages against the City. In the event that the City postpones or suspends the Services, the Contractor's time for performance of the Services shall be extended for a period equal to the period of such postponement or suspension. In the event of termination, suspension or postponement, the City shall pay: (a) for services and any related goods, supplies, materials and equipment furnished up to the time of termination, suspension, or postponement at the contract price upon delivery; (b) for work in process in the amount of the Contractor's cost, determined in accordance with ordinary accepted accounting practices, up to the time of termination, suspension, or postponement; and (c) for raw materials purchased by the Contractor as of the date of termination, suspension, or postponement and which are noncancelable at the Contractor's actual cost plus reasonable handling charges, but only to the extent that such raw materials were purchased in reliance upon this contract and are useful solely with respect to this contract.
- 9.2 Upon receipt of a notice of termination, suspension, or postponement the Contractor shall immediately cease all work hereunder and cancel all orders placed with respect to this contract. The Contractor's failure to so cancel shall relieve the City of the obligations of paragraph 10.1 above.

- 9.3 The City may postpone, suspend or terminate the Services immediately, by notice, hand delivery or certified mail, if the Contractor violates any of the provisions of this Contract, or fails to perform or observe any of the terms, covenants or conditions of this Contract, or abandons in whole or in part its Services, or becomes unable to perform its Services.
- 9.4 In the event of termination of this Contract, the Contractor shall promptly deliver to the City all documents, work papers, calculations, computer programs, data, drawings, plans, and other tangible work product, or materials pertaining to the Services performed under this Contract to the time of termination.

“APPENDIX - G” PRUNING GUIDELINES

What Is Pruning?

Pruning is the selective removal of plant parts, typically shoots and branches, to improve health; control growth; or enhance fruiting, flowering, or appearance. Pruning should be a routine part of home-ground maintenance and not delayed until the landscape is overgrown. Overgrown plants can be tall and leggy with little foliage close to the ground, and cannot be pruned to desired size in a single pruning without severely damaging the plants. These plants should be pruned back gradually over a period of several years. The objective of this document is to present pruning techniques for Florida trees and shrubs. The need for pruning, timing, types of pruning, tree pruning, shrub pruning, and tools are discussed separately. Specific examples will support the pruning concepts.

Why Prune

Proper plant selection can eliminate much of the pruning requirements in today's landscapes. Unfortunately, plants are frequently placed in the landscape according to their current size and shape, not the size which the plant is likely to attain in five or more years. The homeowner or landscape manager soon finds it necessary to clip or prune plants frequently to keep them within bounds. For instance, frequent pruning is assured when photinia shrubs are selected as foundation plants, since this plant can quickly grow to 25-30' tall. Utilizing a low-growing juniper, Wheeler's Dwarf pittosporum, Indian hawthorn or other compact shrub in such a location would greatly reduce or eliminate required pruning. It is less time consuming, and less costly, to select and install the proper sized plant than to choose one which will require frequent, timely pruning. Ask your nurseryman or consult a reliable source for growth rate and size of desirable plant species. If a plant needs to be pruned several times each year to control size, it may be the wrong species for that location. Many prunings can be eliminated by proper plant selection, and this can save space in landfills by reducing the volume of yard waste. Plants may be pruned for a number of reasons. Determine why you are pruning a plant before beginning.

Maintain or improve vigor

Removal of dead, dying, or damaged wood and diseased and insect-infested plant parts is an effective way to stop the spread of decay, disease, and insects to other portions of the plant or to neighboring plants. For example, if several branch tips are infested with aphids or scale, prune and discard the affected shoots. This can be an effective alternative to spraying insecticides if the infestation is small and localized. Weekly checking is often necessary to detect a disease or an infestation in the early stages.

Control plant size and form

A common objective of pruning is to maintain or develop a desired size or form. However, this can be largely eliminated by installing the proper species or cultivar and by not over fertilizing. Many compact and dwarf shrubs are now available at retail garden centers. Selective pruning can shape plants or produce either a thin or thick canopy. A thinner canopy will allow more light penetration and help keep interior leaves on the plant. Root pruning can be used to slow plant growth, producing a more compact plant. Prune one half the root system, wait 4-6 weeks, then prune the other half. Root pruning should be scheduled so roots will be watered thoroughly to keep the soil moist for 4-6 weeks following root pruning.

Training young plants

There are several reasons to train plants. Pruning young trees can dramatically influence their long-term health, function and survival. Early pruning on young shrubs encourages branching and fullness, which are frequently desirable characteristics of landscape plants. Branch spacing and arrangement and the ultimate structural strength and safety of a tree can be controlled by selectively removing branches on a young sapling. Always work with the natural form of a plant. Encourage only one central trunk to develop by removing competing, upright trunks or branches. This should begin within the first 2-3 years after the tree is propagated. Tree training continues for 10 or more years on large-maturing species. Frequent light prunings several times each year encourage faster growth and prevent undesirable sprouting compared to one heavy pruning each year. In all but the highest maintenance landscapes, do not attempt to dramatically alter the natural form; instead, choose a species which has more of a natural tendency to grow into the desired form. For example, a river birch, red maple, or tabebuia would be better suited as a shade tree in a narrow vertical space than would live oak.

Plants can be pruned into different shapes such as balls, squares, rectangles, or animal figures to create special effects. This practice (topiary) has become popular in recent years, but plants pruned in this manner become focal points and should be used sparingly in most landscapes. Topiaries can be grown by planting a small-leaved plant such as boxwood, Surinam cherry, natal plum, or pyracantha and training the plant into a specific form. A new technique utilizes a wire mesh frame which is packed tightly with sphagnum moss. Appropriate plant species including begonias, ivy and creeping fig can be planted in the sphagnum, forming a fully grown topiary in several months to 2 years. The practice of growing plants against a wall (espalier) requires frequent pinching and pruning. Plants trained in this manner are specimen plants and not all plants are adaptable to this pruning technique. Pyracantha, sea grape, fatshedra, magnolia, yaupon holly, podocarpus, and loquat make excellent espalier plants. Plants which many consider to be large shrubs such as photinia, wax myrtle, and pittosporum, can be trained into small trees by gradually removing (over a period of 1-3 years) all the foliage and small branches from the lower portion of one or more stems. This should not start before the plants are 8' tall so that the main trunks can develop properly. Small branches left along the lower trunk will build trunk caliper and create a sturdier tree. The longer they remain on the trunk, the thicker and stronger the trunk becomes.

Desirable form and branching pattern on a young large-sized shade tree such as live oak, sycamore or southern magnolia. Major limbs are spaced 12-24" apart along the trunk, not clustered at the same point on the trunk. B) Desirable form on a young, small-sized patio tree such as dogwood, redbud or frangipani. Major limbs can be spaced closer together on the trunk.

Influence flowering and fruit production

Larger fruit can be produced by selectively removing flowers or developing fruits. Those remaining will be larger. Light pruning helps to maintain annual flowering and fruiting on fruit trees. Severe pruning on plants which flower on current season's growth, such as crape myrtle, will generally stimulate vegetative growth; and produce fewer, but larger flower clusters. On species which flower terminally (e.g., azalea, cassia, crape myrtle) pinching new vegetative growth during the growing season will stimulate growth of lateral shoots and will increase the number of blossoms produced. Remove developing seed heads on crape myrtle to promote a second, and perhaps a third, flower display.

Safety pruning

The manner in which stems are attached to each other and to the trunk influences the structural strength of the tree. Remove branches with embedded bark having narrow "V" shaped crotches in favor of wider-angled "U" shaped crotches (Figure 2). Large decayed, broken, or poorly attached tree limbs should be recognized and promptly removed by a professional before they fall. Remove dead branches and branch stubs as they can lead to serious trunk decay. Periodic tree inspection by a professionally trained tree specialist (arborist) can help prevent these situations from becoming unsafe conditions.

Remove limbs with embedded bark. They are poorly attached to the tree and can split from the tree as they grow older. Embedded bark is bark that is squeezed between stems. The union of the two stems appears as a "V". B) Retain limbs with raised branch bark ridge at the union of the stems. The crotch between these stems appears as a "U" and represents a strong union between stems. The crotches between the trunk and branches a, b and c will develop embedded bark. They should be removed when the tree is young in favor of the remaining wider angled branches.

Proper removal of a dead branch. Do not cut into the swollen collar growing around the dead branch. This will injure the trunk since the collar is composed of trunk tissue. Cut along dashed line.

Rejuvenate old plants

Sometimes a shrub which is not growing well, despite receiving adequate light, water and nutrients, can be invigorated or "shocked" into growing by severe pruning. Typically, the plant either dies or begins growing vigorously in response to this drastic treatment.

Pruning at transplanting

Shoot pruning for the purpose of compensating for root loss at transplanting is not recommended. Prune only to remove dead, diseased, crossed, rubbing or broken branches. About one year after transplanting, begin pruning to develop appropriate form and structure.

When to Prune

Trees and shrubs can be lightly pruned anytime. To minimize reduction of next year's flowers, prune spring-flowering plants, such as azaleas, spireas, and dogwoods, in late spring before the flower buds set for the next season (Table 1). These plants set their flower buds on the previous season's growth and buds over-winter on this older growth. For example, Dogwoods and azaleas form flower buds in July for the following year's flower display. Pruning or pinching between the end of the flower display and late spring would not reduce the number of flower buds set. Pinching the new shoots on azalea anytime from several weeks after they begin elongating through May will encourage lateral branching. Each of these laterals is likely to develop a flower bud. Thus the pinched plant produces many more flowers the following year, than an unpinched plant. Pruning between July and the flower display would remove flower buds and reduce the flower display but should not affect the health of the plant. Plants that produce flowers on current season's growth such as abelia, hibiscus and rose are usually pruned while dormant or just before the spring growth flush (Table 2). Developing shoots can be pinched to encourage lateral branching which will enhance the flower display. Moderate to severe pruning may encourage production of fewer but larger blossoms or blossom clusters.

Pinching new spring or early summer growth on plants which flower on subsequent shoot growth will encourage more flower bud formation for next year's flower display. Azaleas respond well to pinching.

It is best to prune trees late in the dormant season or several weeks following a growth flush. Pruning at other times frequently promotes undesirable sprouting. Trees sprout excessively and are easily damaged when pruned during active shoot elongation. The worst times to prune are when leaves are forming. Do not prune trees which are under stress. Most evergreens, such as podocarpus, holly, boxwood, ligustrum, juniper, and wax myrtle, can be pruned anytime. Terminal growth of pines can be controlled by removing one-half of the new shoot in the spring just prior to needle expansion (Figure 5). This encourages new bud formation at the pinch, slows growth on the pinched branch, and creates a more compact plant. Never pinch a pine at other times of the year since new buds will not form.

Prune pines by pinching one-half of the new shoot before the needles elongate. To encourage rapid shoot development and greatest overall plant growth, prune just prior to bud swell in the spring. To retard growth for maximum dwarfing effect, prune just after each growth flush, when leaves have expanded fully. Late summer pruning may stimulate an additional flush of shoot growth on species which flush several times each year. These shoots could be damaged by an early frost. Closure (callusing) of pruning wounds on most trees and shrubs should be most rapid if pruning is conducted just before, or immediately following the spring growth flush. This is desirable because a closed wound is more aesthetically pleasing-, and insects, diseases, and decay organisms are discouraged from entering the plant. In addition, cold injury can be reduced if pruning is conducted close to spring bud break. Late fall and early winter pruning can stimulate new growth, particularly during a mild period during the winter.

These succulent stems are not cold hardy and can be easily damaged, even by a light frost. Low winter temperatures can also cause cambium damage beneath improperly executed pruning cuts, even if growth is not stimulated by pruning. This is particularly true of plants which are marginally hardy. If in doubt about cold susceptibility, it is best to delay heavy pruning to just before growth begins in the spring. Some trees such as birch, maple, dogwood, elm, and walnut bleed sap from pruned wounds if they are pruned during late winter or early spring. This "bleeding" is not usually harmful to the tree, but the dripping sap is often objectionable. Trees which show this tendency should be pruned in late fall or early winter.

Pruning Techniques

Plants are pruned by either heading back or thinning. Heading back (Figure 6) is the selective cutting of terminal ends of twigs or young branches back to an axillary bud or node. This technique produces a denser tree or shrub because it usually increases the number of shoots and leaves.

Heading back a young unbranched trunk will force two to four buds back from the cut into vigorous upright growth. Undesirable multiple leaders with embedded bark will develop on trees from this type of pruning; however, properly placed, these cuts can create and maintain a nicely formed shrub. B) Growth from an unpruned shoot will be more typical of the natural form and more uniformly distributed along the trunk. Note the horizontal branching habit and the desirable central leader.

However, new growth is typically vigorous and upright --developing from two to several buds just behind the pruning cut. The new foliage may be so thick that it shades the lower growth forming a top-heavy plant. This can be avoided in shrubs by heading back shoots to several different heights Heading back shrubs is cutting back terminal shoots to a bud or node. A) Heading back all shoots to the same height produces a leggy, top heavy shrub. B) Heading back shoots to several different levels produces a more natural, fuller looking shrub.

Heading back (stubbing) trees is rarely warranted in landscape sites. If it is necessary, e.g., to prune beneath power lines or to clear a tree from interfering with a structure, always head back to a fork where there is a live branch (called drop-crotching).

Heading back trees is rarely necessary if they were properly placed in the landscape. Heading back large limbs is very damaging and shortens the life span of the tree. Proper heading (called drop-crotching) in trees is pruning back a fork with a living branch which will become the new leader.

Within several months, prune out all sprouts growing in response to the pruning cut. Never "hat-rack" a landscape tree, i.e., cut all branches back to about the same length without regard for their location.

Never "hatrack" a tree by heading back all branches to an indiscriminate location.

This type of pruning has no place in horticulture and is not recommended. When heading back trees or shrubs, make the cut on a slight slant 1/4 inch above a healthy bud. The bud should be facing the direction preferred for new growth.

Thinning is the complete removal of branches back to lateral branches or the main trunk; or, in shrubs, to the ground. Thinning gives a plant an open appearance and can encourage new growth inside the crown depending on how the plant is thinned. If thinning is heavy, interior sprouts will develop. If the plant is lightly thinned, interior shoots are not likely to develop. This technique is used primarily on shrubs to control size while maintaining a natural appearance. It contrasts to hedging or heading to the same spot on all branches which gives a shrub a manicured, controlled appearance. Trees can be thinned to increase light penetration, encouraging turf growth beneath the tree. Trees with properly thinned crowns also resist wind damage better than unpruned trees. This is a specialized technique best performed by a professional arborist.

Thinning is complete removal of branches back to a lateral or the main trunk or, in shrubs, to the ground. Proper thinning of shade trees first removes branches rubbing, crossed over each other, dead, diseased or dying. If further thinning is desired, remove branches back to major limbs to create an open crown. Space remaining branches along the major limbs to give each room to develop. Removing upright branches creates a more spreading tree; remove horizontal branches to create a more upright form. Grass grows better beneath thinned trees.

Pruning Shrubs

The first step in pruning a shrub is to remove all dead, diseased, or injured branches. Pruning shears and saws can be dipped in a weak alcohol solution (1 part to 9 parts water) to prevent the spread of disease between plants. Remove branches that cross or touch each other and those that look out of place. If the shrub is still too dense or large, remove some of the oldest branches. Head back excessively long branches to a bud or lateral branch that is 6 to 12 inches below the desirable plant height. If the shrub is 2 to 3' too tall, heading (Figure 6) and thinning (Figure 11) may be desirable. Do not use hedge shears; cut each branch separately to different lengths with hand pruners. This will maintain a neat informal shrub with a natural shape. Plants sheared into various geometric shapes produce a formality not suitable for many modern, natural landscapes. See the following section on hedge pruning for a discussion of formal pruning. A properly pruned shrub is a work of art and beauty and does not look as if it has been pruned. Pruning cuts should not be visible, but located inside the plant, covered up by remaining foliage.

Rejuvenation of Shrubs

Rejuvenation is a drastic method of pruning old shrubs that have become much too large or have a large amount of non-flowering wood. On single-stem shrubs such as ligustrum and gardenia, rejuvenation is carried out over a period of 2-3 years by severe thinning out to the basic limb framework. One-third to one-half of the old growth is removed each year.

Rejuvenation on single stem and grafted shrubs is carried out by severe thinning out to the basic framework.

Multiple stem shrubs are rejuvenated by cutting back all stems at ground level over a period of 3 years. Remove 1/3 of the old, mature stems the first year. The second year remove 1/2 of the remaining old stems and head back long shoots growing from the previous year's pruning cuts. Remove the remaining old wood and head back the long new shoots in the third season.

Rejuvenation of multiple stem shrubs. A) First year, remove 1/3 of old, mature stems near ground level. B) Second year, remove 1/2 of the remaining old stems and head back long regenerated shoots from last year's growth. C) Third year, remove the remaining old stems and head back the long new shoots. D) Growth at the end of the third season (rejuvenated shrub).

The best time for rejuvenation is in late winter or early spring, just before growth begins. Large, old shrubs should not be rejuvenated during late summer, as new growth will be stimulated and possibly killed by cold weather in the winter. Pruning cane-type shrubs such as nandina and mahonia is best done on a 2-or 3-year cycle. The tallest canes are pruned to a stub 3"-6" above the soil line during the first spring, just as growth begins. By the second spring, last year's medium-sized canes have grown to become tall canes and should be cut back to a 3" stub. Canes from the first year's pruning have already begun to grow and are one to three feet tall by now. In the third spring, the canes which were the shortest in-the first spring are now fairly tall and can be cut back. In this way, there is always foliage near the ground and the shrubs can be kept from becoming leggy. Cut nandina canes generally will not flower during the growing season following pruning.

Hedge Pruning

The method of pruning hedges depends on the type of hedge desired. Informal hedges generally consist of a row of closely planted shrubs which are allowed to develop into their natural shape. Annual pruning consists of thinning and heading back just enough to maintain desired height and width. Formal or clipped hedges require a specialized pruning which may become a continuous job during the growing season. The desired appearance of a formal hedge is a soft outline of foliage from the top of the hedge to the ground. There are two important factors to remember when pruning formal hedges. 1) Hedges should be clipped while new growth is green and succulent. 2) Plants should be trimmed so the base of the hedge is wider than the top (Figure 21). Hedges pruned with a narrow base will lose lower leaves and branches because of insufficient light. This condition will worsen with age resulting in sparse growth at ground level and an unattractive hedge which does not give desired privacy. Flowering hedges grown formally should be sheared after they have bloomed as more frequent shearing reduces number of blooms. If the blooms are of secondary importance, pruning may be conducted at any time. Tools should be kept sharp for easier cutting without injuring surrounding tissue. Injured tissues are susceptible to disease and decay which can lead to long-term health problems for the plant.

Plants pruned as a solid hedge should be wider at the bottom than the top.

Hand pruners are used to cut branches less than 1/4" in diameter. B) Loppers are used to cut branches up to 1/2" in diameter. C) Hedge shears are used to shear formal hedges. D) Saws are used to remove larger branches. E) Both shears and saws are available on poles which are handy to prune difficult-to-reach branches.
